

Is Rangeland Management Needed ???

Daisy Manungo

QUESTIONS

- What is the importance of Agriculture to the Global, African or Namibian or rural economy
2. Is it still essential to invest in Agriculture?
 3. Is it still the engine of the Namibian Economy?

QUESTIONS

4. How is Effective and efficient rangeland management linked to the quality of livestock production and income for the producers
5. Is it worthy to invest in Rangeland restoration, why should it be a priority to the producers, governments and State Owned Enterprises

Out of the 2.3 million Namibians as of today, 70% reside in the rural areas and subsist on Agriculture directly or indirectly for a livelihood. Livestock production is a key sub sector in creating employment and reducing poverty and inequalities. Hence rangeland management is very fundamental in enhancing the quality of raw material supply. In order to attain the national aspiration as per the growth at home strategy, we will have to restore rangeland for better raw material supply and improve the throughput.